CELEBRATING 110 YEARS

On May 8, 2024, Oklahoma State University Extension celebrates 110 years of educational programming and resources offered to enrich communities and improve the lives of Oklahomans. Since the Smith-Lever Act was passed by Congress in 1914, Oklahoma State University Extension has thrived with innovative programs and local partnerships. We're not just serving Oklahomans today, but for years to come. While the early days of OSU Extension are often associated with grainy, black-and-white images of specialists visiting dusty fields to offer farming advice, OSU Extension looks much different today. From youth development to wellness workshops, wine-making and wheat breeding, we're meeting the needs of Oklahomans everywhere.
